Gallatin named new PGA pro at Sunrise

Madison native to begin June 20

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Mayor Bob Courtney announced Friday the hiring of Madison native Roger D. Gallatin as the city's new PGA golf professional at Sunrise Golf Course.

Roger D. Gallatin

Gallatin, the current head pro at Hickory Sticks Golf Club in northern Kentucky, is a 1987 graduate of Madison Consolidated High School and the son of former MCHS principal and coach Roger D. Gallatin.

"Sunrise Golf Course is a tremendous community asset which not only contributes to the local quality of life but will now become a benefit to the entire parks system," said Courtney. "Our vision is to bring more local and regional events and tournaments to Madison and make the course a Midwest destination. Roger is the right person for this job. He is a native Madisonian and will bring organization, enthusiasm, and effective communication and marketing expertise to the course."

Gallatin has more than 35 years experience in the golf industry and has served as head PGA professional at Hickory Sticks in California, Kentucky, since 2013. He's also held jobs as a manufacturers' representative for Mizuno and Bridgestone among others and in equipment marketing. He's taught golf, organized leagues, tournaments and outings and managed youth programs along the way while traveling across the country hoping to get an opportunity to come home to the place it all started.

"Being named the golf professional at Sunrise Golf Course is an opportunity of a lifetime," said Gallatin, whose father died in 2019 but his

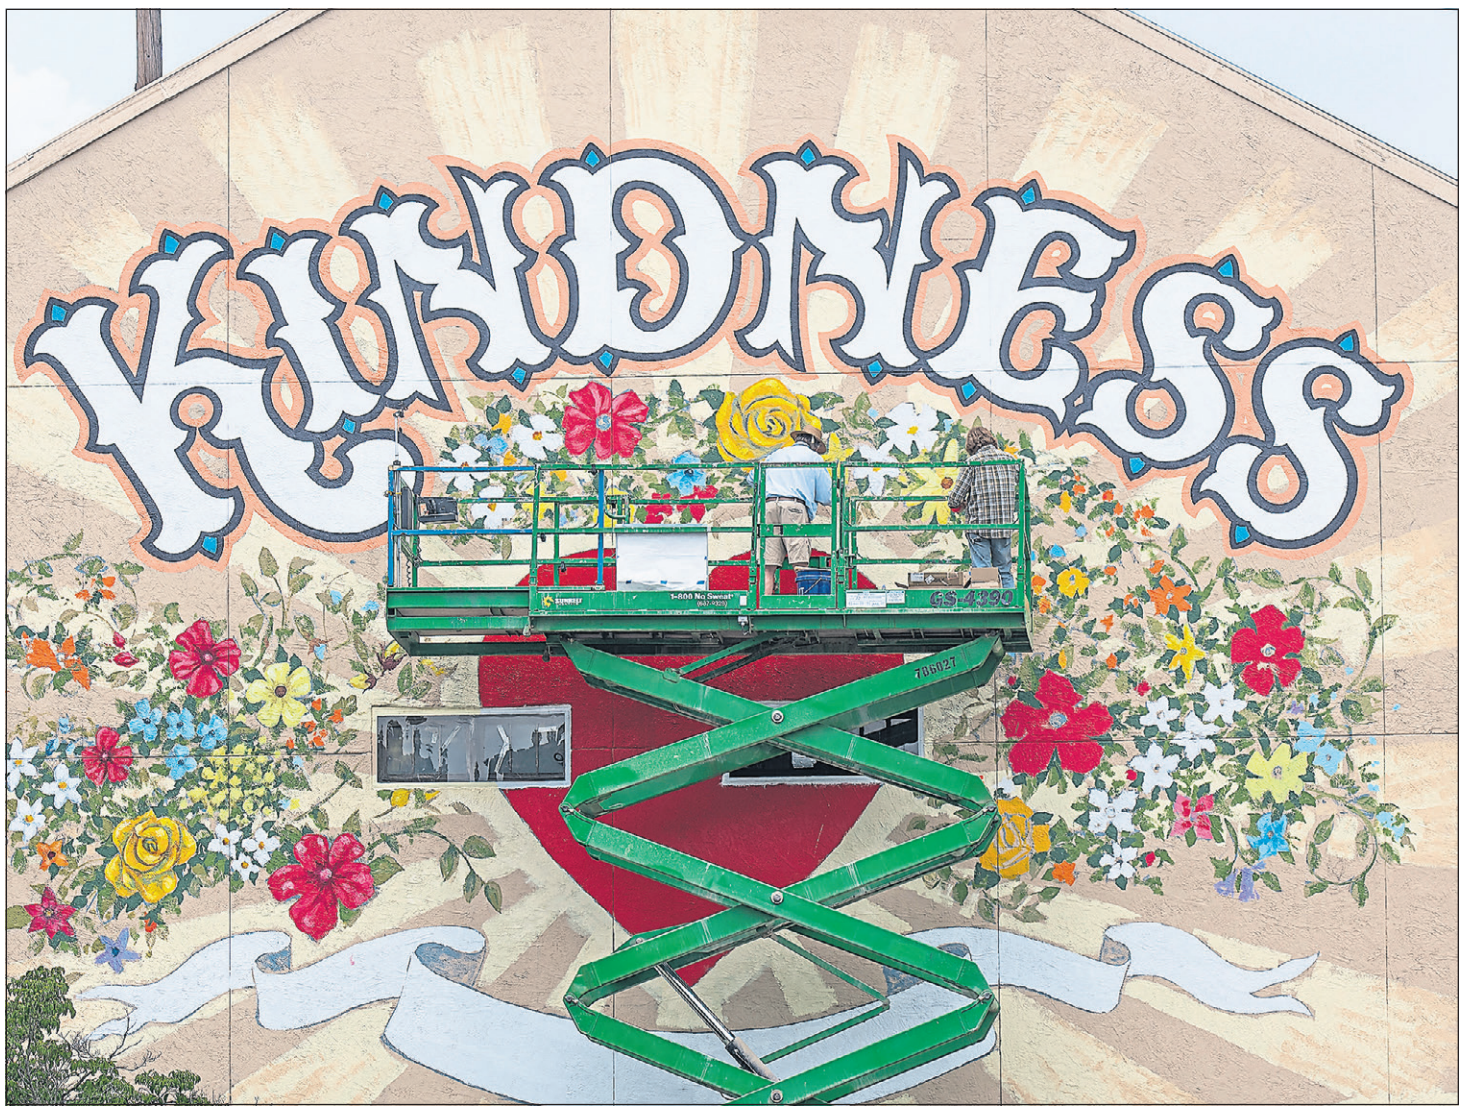
KINDNESS



Above: What once was a blank wall is coming to life as a colorful "Kindness" mural, after Madison artists Steve Bickis and Kevin Carlson have made much progress over the last few days on the project supported by the Madison Area Arts Alliance. The mural, located beside the city parking lot at the northeast corner of Second and Mulberry streets where there are also plans for a park with landscaping and other improvements, will eventually cover the entire 180-foot wall of the former Hentz Bakery building at that site.

Madison Regatta to resume racing under bridge

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

One of the Madison Regatta's most enduring images — Unlimited hydroplanes screaming from underneath the Milton-Madison Bridge — will return for this year's running of the APBA Gold and Indiana Governor's cups.

Regatta President Greg Thorpe made the announcement at Wednesday's general membership meeting at The Boneyard Grill.

"It's something that we have talked about and we know that it is something that people really wanted to see," Thorpe said. "The response from H1 has been very positive and we even had one boat owner who wasn't planning on coming to the race saying that they would now consider coming so that they could go under the bridge."

The bridge has traditionally been the key landmark to Madison 's Wild Bill Cantrell Race Course. Boats cross under the bridge along the backstretch as they head toward turn two, then exit from under the bridge as they come down the front stretch. The race course last went under the bridge in 2016.

The Regatta moved away from racing under the bridge in recent years for a variety of reasons. Concerns about choppy water in the first turn prompted officials to try shifting the course to avoid the "holes," and then there was the idea of keeping the course fully within the Regatta's "footprint," which ends at the bridge.

But those concerns now have been set aside. This year's race course will revert to its traditional 2.5-mile course, rather than the 2-mile length in recent years.

The announcement of course changes was the highlight of a Regatta membership meeting that was short on details despite the race now being less than a month away.

JCPC seeking guidance on solar energy development

BY BOB DEMAREE

With the Comprehensive Plan adopted by the Jefferson County Commissioners last month and the need for regulations to better address the emerging solar energy industry, Jefferson County Plan Commission (JCPC) is looking for guidance.

Plan Commission attorney Pat Magrath said the process for updating ordinances and fees would start with the JCPC researching and creating ordinances to be recommended to the Commissioners for review and possible adoption. He noted the process would also involve public hearings.

JCPC President Warren Auxier said he thinks the county needs to "bring in a professional" to assist with ordinance writing, and wondered if the Commissioners might have funding to assist with that process.

Commissioner David Bramer, also a member of the JCPC, said money has been budgeted for just such situations and "this would be one of those actions."

In particular, there was discussion about ensuring standards are established through ordinances related to solar operations. Currently, there are no ordinances regulating solar operations, and there have been reports of interest for development of solar operations in Jefferson County.

County seeks bids on jail bonds

BY BOB DEMAREE

The long process leading toward construction beginning on the new Jefferson County Sheriff and Justice Center took another step forward Thursday.

Jefferson County Commissioners President David Bramer told that board Thursday that bonds for the project were put up for sale earlier in the day and the process was a success.

"It went very well," said Bramer. "The interest rate was less than planned, which will make our annual payments less."

Bramer said paperwork is still being finalized, but expectations are that contracts should be awarded in two weeks. Because construction bids received last month were higher than expected, a resolution was recently passed to increase the amount that can be borrowed to up to $45 million.

In other business, the Commissioners:

- Heard a presentation from Rick Anderson, business development director at Johnson-Melloh Solutions, an Indianapolis company under the umbrella of Veregy Energy Solutions, on projects that could lower the county's energy costs.

Sewer line work postponed

BY THE COURIER STAFF

The planned partial road closure at the intersection of Elm and Third streets in Madison has been pushed back to next week due to inclement weather.

The City of Madison Sewer Department had scheduled the closure this week to repair a main line at the intersection. Due to the forecast for heavy rain the work has been rescheduled or next week. The intersection will be closed to traffic from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily — or until completion of the project — on Tuesday, June 8 through Thursday, June 10.

Motorists should expect some delays and plan accordingly as well as avoid the area if possible. The work schedule is once again subject to change in the event of inclement weather or an emergency.

GALLATIN

mother, a sister and several family members all reside in Madison. "I have committed my life to the game of golf, and I now can apply all the experiences I have accumulated over 35 years at the course where my journey began. This is nothing short of a dream come true. It is a true privilege to be chosen to lead Sunrise into this exciting new future."

Gallatin, a golfer for the Cubs in high school, loved the game enough that he wanted to make it a career so he headed off to Starkville, Mississippi, for college and enrolled in what was then one of the first golf course management programs in the country at Mississippi State University. He did not play collegiate golf for MSU, instead focusing on the business side of golf and obtaining a degree in business administration-professional golf management.

Gallatin became a PGA Professional in the 1990s and over the years has worked in the industry in various capacities — mainly in the Kentucky and Indiana region — along with some travel nationwide. He served internships out of college in Memphis and Indianapolis and as a professional in Noblesville and at his current course.

Along the way, he's always held an interest in returning home to Madison — the community and the course where it all started — but the right opportunity never presented itself until now.

"I've always kept an eye on Madison and hoped I'd be able to work something out," Gallatin said. "At this point in my career, I'm more into the management side of the business and that's what Sunrise needs."

Gallatin noted that Sunrise is "family golf at its best" in that the city has a quality municipal course open to everyone. However, he said it's also a course that could use some improvement.

"The course is very nice but it needs some work," Gallatin said, noting he will consult with the course superintendent at Sunrise just like he has at Hickory Sticks to "improve course conditions" and bring the facility up to another level.

In addition to a new golf professional, golfers can expect to see expanded services at Sunrise Golf Course. Over the next few weeks, the city will update the clubhouse, implement new marketing strategies, and reopen the grill with an expanded menu.

Gallatin also said the course needs a higher profile online to promote the facility and bring in cash-paying customers and tourists to enjoy one of the better municipal courses and towns around and provide the injection of capital needed to make the facility even better.

"The biggest avenue I see is the online presence," Gallatin said. "It doesn't have much online presence so there's an opportunity there to expand that and expand our customer base."

With experience in maintaining and operating budgets of over $1 million, increasing profit margins, and developing marketing strategies Gallatin is eager for that task. Gallatin has done all that before at Hickory Sticks, a course that opened in 1998, was struggling a few years ago but has bounced back in a big way the past couple of years.

"The golf industry is booming — and it's from east to west — after being in decline a few years ago," Gallatin said, noting his job is to make sure that boom also comes to Madison. "The bulk of that has come in the public golf sector at places like Sunrise. We had 27,000 rounds at Hickory Sticks last year and that's what we want at Sunrise."

In addition to a new golf professional, golfers can expect to see expanded services at Sunrise Golf Course. Over the next few weeks, the city will update the clubhouse, implement new marketing strategies, and reopen the grill with an expanded menu. Alcohol will also be available for purchase in the clubhouse or out on the course and the newly branded Sunrise Café will be open to the public.

Gallatin will begin his new job Sunday, June 20.

Before regulations are specified, Auxier wondered if the Board of Zoning Appeals could consider conditional uses for solar in any approvals that might be given for solar operations. Magrath said he believed BZA approvals could to be "tied to specific considerations at the time." He said those conditions provided by the BZA would prevent items from "being grandfathered in" before passage of any ordinances in regard to solar operations.

Auxier read from Indiana code IC-36-7-2-8 indicating support by the State of Indiana for the use of solar, stating "a unit may not adopt any ordinance which has the effect of prohibiting or of unreasonably restricting the use of solar energy systems other than for the preservation or protection of the public health and safety." It also states "it is the policy of this state to promote and encourage the use of solar energy systems and to remove obstacles to this use."

Auxier noted that enforcing nuisance ordinances has always been challenging, but recent success has been achieved by the Jennings County Area Planning Commission in that area.

In other discussions, County Surveyor Mike Pittman expressed a need for more effective nuisance regulations to "motivate more people to be responsible to the issues we are finding."

"We may not need a hammer but a soft push," Pittman said.

Auxier noted that enforcing nuisance ordinances has always been challenging, but recent success has been achieved by the Jennings County Area Planning Commission in that area. He proposed asking a representative of that commission to meet with JCPC to "provide insight into what they have done to make it work" and the members agreed that would be a good idea.

One challenge that has been on the JCPC's agenda since January is property owned by Lewis Handlon, 10218 West Polk Road, Lexington, in Republican Township. They have attempted to meet with him concerning nuisance violations. Lynette Anderson, secretary of the Planning and Zoning Office, said she was told that work prevented him from attending Wednesday's meeting. Auxier suggested they work out a time to meet with Handlon in an effort to resolve the issue.

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mr. Daniel Ryan Todd

Mr. Daniel Ryan Todd, age 36 was brought into this world on the 20th of February in 1985 in Decatur, Illinois. He was to be the loving son of Danny Ray and Tammara Shaul Todd. Daniel lived a deeply impactful and meaningful life. Although his Thirty-Six years on this Earth, and in our presence, was far too short by any measurement, we will remember him always for his kindness, as well as his strong determination. He was a proud 2004 graduate of Madison Consolidated High School and sought to be of service to both his nation and loved ones. In this pursuit, he earnestly enlisted in the United States Army but was discharged due to a chronic illness. A condition which plagued and severely deprived him of his eyesight throughout his life. Despite this constant challenge, Daniel never lost his forgiving spirit and was never one to hold grudges or stand in the face of reconciliation. He carried with him a kind competitiveness and natural intelligence. A distinguishing mixture that allowed the pursuit of not only his love of football and wrestling during his school years; but also, his lifelong practice of the game of chess and the playing of the guitar. It can prove surprising the great many things that can still be said in acknowledgment and memory for a life cut so short; but above all, he will be most remembered for his resolute and loving devotion to family. He was incredibly fortunate in the fact that he was able to marry his soul mate, Sarah Wahl on March 31st, 2017. He often referred to her as the 'Love of his Life'. He was blessed, and blessed the world, with five children. His sons Kaden, Jayden, Jaxon, and Eli and his daughter, his Princess, Zoey. Although he was many things: a friend, a cousin, a son, a grandson, a husband; it was this role, that of a father, that he found most fulfilling and inspirational. His children were the ultimate light of his life and will continue to be the enduring carriers of his memory. For all the heartache his passing has brought us, we can be assured that he has only been reunited with his loving brother, Channing Todd, and together they will be entertaining the Angels until we meet them again. Daniel died on Saturday, May 29, 2021, at 11:03 a.m. in Westville, Indiana.

A LOVING FAMILY

Daniel will be missed by his loving wife, Sara Faye Wahl Todd of Versailles, Indiana; his children, Kaden Todd, Jayden Todd, Jaxon Todd, Eli Todd, and Zoey Todd; his step children, Aiden Wahl, Braden Ritchison, C.J. Wahl, and Damian Wahl; his mother, Tammara Shaul Todd of Jeffersonville, Indiana; his father, Danny Ray Todd and his wife, Brandie of Lillington, North Carolina; his sister, Sabrina Todd of Madison, Indiana; his maternal grandmother, Ruby Mayberry and her husband, George of Spring Hill, Florida; his paternal grandmother, Cherri Thorne of Madison, Indiana; his mother in law and father in law, Joyce and George Wahl of Versailles, Indiana; several aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces, and nephew. He was preceded in death by his brother, Channing Taylor Lamar Todd, died May 19, 2016, his paternal grandfather, Richard Lee Thorne, died July 12, 2020, his maternal grandfather, Myron B. Shaul, died February 22, 2006, his paternal great grandma, Nancy E. Todd, died March 11, 2004, his maternal great grandfather, J. O. Shaul.

Johnson-Melloh Solutions has worked with Madison Consolidated Schools in adapting its buildings to solar energy. Anderson said the company works with Heating, Ventilation and Air Conditioning systems and lighting.

"We do a ton of solar," Anderson said, proposing that the county's energy costs can be reduced with solar, allowing the county to "spend what you save on infrastructure."

Anderson offered to do a preliminary analysis on the county's buildings with recommendations.

Bramer said the Commissioners "will think about it for a little bit," because the county also expects a similar presentation soon from PSG Energy Group, also from Indianapolis.

- Received a request from Tammy Monroe, administrator of the Jefferson County Health Department, to replace windows and doors at the JCHD building.

"The health department is a 30-year old building and it is needing some repairs to the windows and the doors," she said. In particular, Monroe said the windows need repair on the north side from the parking lot side of the building.

"Doors have rusted out on the bottom and are in bad shape." Monroe said, adding "the gutters are in horrible shape, but we will work on that later because windows are now the biggest concern."

Monroe said she is in the process of getting cost estimates for the work from Glass Unlimited of Madison and Kinsinger's Custom Windows of Vevay and would report back at the next meeting with more estimates.

- Appointed Erica Cline, archivist and grant writer at the Courthouse, to the Southeastern Indiana Regional Planning Commission.

Struggling with student loans

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I met a man about four years ago. We started dating a week after we met, upon his insistence. Well, after we were together a year, I found out that he was messaging with a girl online and had been for several months. She didn't want him. Then, a month after that, I heard he cheated on me with someone from work who was in her early 20s, the same age as his daughter. I confronted him, but he refused to admit he was guilty. However, I've caught him exchanging sexual messages with a couple of other girls online since then. He says he's never actually hooked up with them in person.

I guess my question for you is, is it worth trying to keep this man in my life? I love him, and he says he loves me, but part of me is no longer in love with him. If I'm being honest, I've felt this way ever since I heard of his cheating with that young woman. What do you think, Annie: Should I set him on the curb on trash day? My heart is telling me to stay, but my mind is wanting me to tell him to get lost. — Confused Girlfriend

Dear Confused: Listen to your mind on this one. Not only did he cheat on you more than once (the racy messages count as cheating), but he's also shown no interest in truly making it right by you. Life is short, and your time is too precious to squander on someone who doesn't value it. While at first it might feel hard to live without him, eventually, you'll look back and wonder how you lived with him for as long as you did.

Dear Annie: I'm a senior in high school, and I'm struggling with finances right now. I plan on going to community college, but even so, I would still have to pay $2,000 out of pocket because for some reason, they are having trouble viewing my Free Application for Federal Student Aid form.

I'm very overwhelmed, and I don't even know what to do now. If I stop school for a year to work and save up money, it will be very difficult for me to readjust to a student's lifestyle. If I don't, I'll have to take a loan out, and I don't even know if I'll be able to afford to pay it back. I have five kids to help care for (my little siblings). Is there some sort of solution to this? I know that when I'm stressed and overwhelmed it's very hard for me to see obvious answers to my problems, and I tend to overthink. I just need some guidance and advice and a bit of a walk-through. My entire family is depending on me to pull through educationally. So, I really need a stable, decent-paying job that can support a family.

I'd really appreciate any help you can offer. — Embarrassed and Overwhelmed

Dear Embarrassed: Far from being embarrassed, you should be proud. You're investing in your education and beginning a new chapter of your life while also helping to take care of your family. Don't be dissuaded from starting school just because you're feeling overwhelmed by applying for student loans. Navigating the student loan system can be a challenge, even for people who have done it before. It's natural that you'd need some guidance in the process. Fortunately, the Federal Student Aid Information Center exists for just such a purpose. Reach out to their hotline at 800-433-3243 for expert assistance. Kudos, and best wishes to you.

Noisy next-door neighbors

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I believe your answer to "Canine Cacophony" provided some practical advice about how to deal with noisy dogs next door. CC had problems enjoying his/her outdoor space because of the noise.

I'd like to provide another perspective. We have one quiet dog. Our next-door neighbor has three noisy pooches who seem to be outside a lot. My neighbors are the kindest people, and they have been there for us in times of emergency and in every neighborly way imaginable. We count ourselves fortunate to have these neighbors — dogs barking and all. Every relationship has its pluses and minuses, and I always say if you don't want to hear crying babies or barking dogs, suburbia is not for you.

That being said, we did put up a privacy fence and let our neighbors know how much we'd miss our backyard chats (there's always the front yard!). Our dog would definitely be in on the barking if he could see his neighbors, and the fence provides a measure of peace for all of us. — Lucky in the Suburbs

Dear Lucky in the Suburbs: Good fences make for good neighbors. It sounds like you solved the problem. Your positivity and perspective regarding your neighbors are what makes for a happier life. If we focus on the cup half full, we tend to get more joy and happiness in our lives. Acknowledging your gratitude for your wonderful neighbors while setting the boundaries that make sense for your family sounds like the perfect solution.

Seeing the good in our literal neighbor or our metaphorical neighbor leads us to live a more peaceful life.

Dear Annie: It's been interesting and uplifting to read the stories of people persisting in the pursuit of their dreams, proving that you're never too old.

These made me think of a story that may not be all that well-known.

Character actor Burt Mustin did not begin his professional acting career until after he had retired at the age of 67. He made over 150 appearances on TV and in movies in his career, working almost until his death at the age of 92. — Retired Postal Worker

Dear Retired Postal Worker: Thank you for sharing the story about the character actor.

Dear Annie: I am a 50-year-old man, and about three years ago, my wife divorced me after 16 years of marriage. I've never laid a finger on her, and I've never cheated on her. The reason for the separation was that I was hardly ever home because I was always doing side jobs along with a full-time job.

After the divorce, we were separated for about a year-and-a-half, and then we got back together. My wife is 60 years old — 10 years older than me. She is beautiful and smart, but my issue is that when we got the divorce, after about a year, I was over her. It took a lot of grieving on my part, and now, I just can't find the love that I had for her before the divorce. It is affecting the will to initiate sex with her, or even to be intimate. I'm not sure what I'm supposed to do. I just want that love back that I had for her once before. — Trying to Love Again

Dear Trying to Love Again: Ask yourself if you are really trying to love again or if you are living with resentment toward your wife for leaving you in the first place. I don't think your age difference is very important. What is important is how you treat each other. Pulling away from intimacy of all sorts with your wife is not the recipe for a successful marriage. With the help of a good therapist, explore if you can forgive her for the past and if you want to make the marriage work. It takes two.

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mrs. Joyce Sue Arnett Davis

Mrs. Joyce Sue Arnett Davis, age 79, of Bedford, Kentucky entered this life on January 31, 1942 in Carrollton, Kentucky. She was the loving daughter of the late Chester and Opha Arnett. Her family moved to Switzerland County and she graduated in 1958 from Vevay High School. She was united in marriage to Cleon Denvil Davis who preceded her in death. She was a graduate of Louisville Beauty College and owned and operated her own beauty shop for many years. She later served as a guard for the Kentucky State Reformatory in LaGrange until she retired. Joyce enjoyed being outdoors in her vegetable garden, reading, crocheting and her rose garden. Her greatest pleasure was spending time with her family, friends, and her faithful dog, Sadie. Joyce died on Wednesday, June 2, 2021, at 10:38 a.m. at her home in Bedford, Kentucky.

A LOVING FAMILY

Joyce will be missed by her loving daughters, Teresa Craig of Bedford, Kentucky, Jennilu Emerick of Louisville, Kentucky, Shonda Riley and her husband, Kenny of Bedford, Kentucky; her son, Dwyane Tandy and his wife, Sonja of Madison, Indiana; her brother, David Arnett and his wife, JoAnn of Knoxville, Tennessee; seven grandchildren; nine great grandchildren; several nieces, nephews and other relatives. She was preceded in death by her father, Chester Arnett, her mother, Opha Arnett Arnett, her son, Denvil Davis, her husband, Cleon Denvil Davis, her grandson, Brinley Craig, her sisters, Ruth Smith, Kathleen Stewart, and Eunice Vanderbrink.

Perry wraps up career with trip to track state finals

Shawe's Leatherman to compete in high jump finals

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

It's doubtful few athletes in the state of Indiana had has good of a week as Lundun Perry last week.

The recently graduated Madison Consolidated High School senior qualified for her first IHSAA Track & Field State Finals on Tuesday and a day later signed her national letter of intent to run track & field at the University of Indianapolis.

The back-to-back accomplishments left the always-smiling Perry more upbeat than usual.

"This has been a fun week," she said.

Perry will compete in the 200-meter dash at the girls state track & field finals which begin at 3 p.m. today at Ben Davis High School. She will be one of two local athletes competing, joining Shawe's Emmalina Leatherman, who became the first female in her school's history to qualify for the finals when she punched her ticket in the high jump.

Perry earned her state finals spot with an impressive run in the 200 dash at the regional at Bloomington North. After coasting to a sixth-place finish in the preliminaries, Perry turned on the afterburner in the finals to place third in 26.24.

Perry, who had also qualified for the regional in the 100 dash but finished eighth, said she didn't have much energy after that first race, but a pep talk by coach Patrick Maschino — and a quick snack break — got her ready to go.

"At the beginning, I was definitely struggling. I didn't eat well and I didn't have any energy," Perry said. "The coaches and parents came through and gave me a thing of peanut M&Ms and like three Madison's Charles Adler was the first bowler to reach 2,000 pins at the United States Bowling Congress' 2021 Open Championships currently held in Las Vegas over Memorial Day weekend.

Madison's Adler first to reach 2,000 pins at U.S. Bowling Championships

BY THE COURIER STAFF

LAS VEGAS — Being a last-minute substitute can have its advantages, as Charles Adler of Madison found out recently at the 2021 United States Bowling Congress Open Championships.

The 57-year-old right-hander was scheduled to bowl in Las Vegas this year, before an original member of the team he was on returned to the roster, leaving Adler without a spot.

It turns out being the odd man out wasn't a bad thing, after all, as Adler was recruited by a group of bowlers from his home center — Pollard's Bowl in Versailles — with a long track record of success at the USBC Open Championships.

Knowing their reputation, and leaning on them for their expertise, Adler posted sets of 729 in team, 678 in doubles and 628 in singles for a 2,035 total. It was the best of his five Open Championships appearances by nearly 300 pins.

"Honestly, I felt a little lucky today, but I also felt like I was throwing the ball really well," Adler said. "I knew as long as I stayed clean, I'd have a shot."

Adler's team set put the Standard All-Events lead well within reach heading into doubles and singles at the South Point Bowling Center on Tuesday. He needed just 1,213 over six games for a share of the lead, which was held by Michael Hamilton of Davenport, Iowa, with 1,942.

Across the nine games, Adler broke 200 seven times and had four games over 240. His best all-events performance in his first four Open Championships appearances was 1,750 at the 2019 event, also at South Point.

The Standard Division, for bowlers with entering tournament averages of 156-175, was introduced in 2017. In three years of competition, the winning all-events scores were 1,915, 1,855 and 1,876.

The team Adler landed on this year included USBC Hall of Famer Rick Pollard, who helped Pollard's Bowl to the Team All-Events title at the 1996 tournament in Salt Lake City with a record score of 10,425, now the tournament's longest-standing scoring record.

Pollard's Bowl produced a pair of recent champions, too, with Jamie and Vicky Pollard winning Classified Doubles in 2015.

Adler's performance in the team event Monday at the South Point Bowling Plaza helped the 2021 edition of Pollard's Bowl to a 3,166 total and a spot just outside the top 25 in Regular Team.

He was joined in the effort by Rick Pollard (627), Christopher Pollard (618), Tyler Slaubaugh (604) and David Welage (588).

The record-setting Pollard's Bowl team in 1996 included Rick Pollard, his brother and fellow USBC Hall of Famer, Ron Pollard, Jerry Kessler and another pair of hall of famers, Don Scudder Jr. and Bill Spigner.

The 2021 Open Championships will run for 79 consecutive days from May 1 through July 18.

For more information on the Open Championships, visit BOWL.com/OpenChamp or on Facebook at the official USBC Open Championships Facebook page.

Center ready to turn eyes at Indiana Southeast

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Athletic and talented, but not flashy, it was easy for Nick Center to get overlooked on one of the most talented teams Madison basketball has put on the floor in more than a decade. While others racked up stats, Center was content to make life easier for his teammates.

But while Center's stats may have not have jumped off the page, his talent was easy to see and unquestionable. So when Indiana University Southeast head men's basketball coach Wiley Brown saw Center in open gym, he couldn't help be impressed.

"I didn't get a chance to see him in high school because our schedules conflicted and with COVID, everything was crazy, but he came down to open gym and I got a chance to look at him and it was amazing how athletic the kid is," Brown said. "He's not only athletic, but he's a strong kid and I love kids that also play football. He's a tremendous athlete, he can score the ball, he can shoot the three and he can finish around the rim. What I really like about him is that he settles down on defense and rebounds the ball really well. So we've got a good edition."

Center officially signed last week to play basketball at IUS, capping a stellar senior season. He joins a Grenadier program that played just 10 games last season due to COVID concerns, but is routinely one of the best in all of NAIA.

"It is definitely a day to remember. I liked the coach a lot and it's a really nice campus and I felt like I would really fit in there," said Center, who also considered heading to Hawaii to play. "(The open gym) was kind of new at first because it's a whole new level, but I think the guys were really welcoming and I think I'll fit in well."

Center averaged 10.4 points per game for the 17-9 Cubs, third on the team, but it was his other skills that stood out. He averaged 5.5 assists — 29th in the state — and 5.1 rebounds per game as he was content to let others carry the scoring load.

David Campbell

Madison's Nick Center, shown throwing down a dunk against Danville last season, has signed to play basketball at Indiana University Southeast.

But he is also a gifted scorer, which is something that Brown emphasized Center will have to do at IUS.

"He will be asked to score a lot in college. He has seen that the game is a lot more physical. You don't get a lot of 7-footers in our league, but you get 6-6, 6-7 athletes that can really play the game," Brown said. "He knows that he is going to have to compete every single night, not only on the defensive end, but also on the scoring end. And he's going to be asked to score because he can get to the rim, he runs very good. My teams in the past have always scored a lot of points and he fits right into that mold."

Center is ready for the challenge.

"I like to get everybody involved in the game and hopefully I can do that too," said Center, who plans to major in secondary education with thoughts of returning to Madison to teach in the future. "I'm just ready to take care of business."

Center is just the latest member of the boys basketball team to announce he playing at the next level. Luke Miller will play for his father, Jon Miller, at Hanover while Luke Ommen is headed to Berry College in Georgia to play golf.

Indiana offering free fishing this weekend

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Indiana residents can fish the state's public waters without a fishing license or a trout/salmon stamp this weekend.

The two Free Fishing Days kick off National Fishing and Boating Week, June 5-13, a national celebration that highlights the importance of recreational fishing and boating. Those activities are excellent opportunities to get outside and connect with family and friends, and spending time outdoors is also good for your health.

June is an especially good time to fish for largemouth bass, sunfish, catfish, and Skamania steelhead. Fishing tips and videos can be found at on.IN.gov/learn2fish.

Some urban parks will be stocked this week with catchable-size channel catfish; see wildlife.IN.gov/fishing/urban-fishing for locations. For public fishing areas and access sites statewide, explore the Where to Fish map at on.IN.gov/where2fish. Indiana is also home to several water trails across the state that provide opportunities to fish while you paddle; see on.IN.gov/watertrails for more information.

To learn more about Free Fishing Weekend events, visit on.IN.gov/fishfree. This year's last Free Fishing Day will be Sept. 25.

PERRY

drinks to get my energy back. I was ready to go."

Perry's journey from natural athlete to college signee wasn't an easy one. Like so many others, Perry lost her junior season to COVID-19 and considering that she did not take the sport seriously until her sophomore year, she had little actual race experience. Toss in an injury early this season and it was hard to get any attention from college coaches.

"I saw this coming two years ago. Between her work ethic and the way she applies herself, all it took was for her to realize in her head how good she could be," Maschino said. "The body was there, the talent was there, the work ethic was there and you saw it when she came out as a sophomore and just blew everybody away. I just stood there and was like, 'Yup, I can work with this.' "

Despite that talent, Perry had difficulty finding a landing spot for the next level. Former Madison football player Noah Caswell, who is currently playing at Indianapolis, suggested the Division II Greyhounds. Perry got in touch with the school and the rest fell in place.

"The only one that really wanted me was Manchester and I had to talk more with UIndy and to show them that I am actually good at this," said Perry, who plans to major in sports marketing. "It all worked out."

Perry goes into the state finals seeded 22nd out of 27 runners and will race in the third preliminary heat. Leatherman, a sophomore, is seeded 23rd in the high jump.

The high jump competition begins at 3:30 p.m. with the 200 dash trials set for a 5:40 p.m. start.

Jefferson County BZA denies former schoolhouse proposal

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Jefferson County Board of Zoning Appeals on Wednesday rejected a property owner's request to deed off land around a former schoolhouse from a more than 65-acre farm in Shelby Township.

Harold Hart, of Charlestown, is a member of Dale Copeland Farm LLC that owns 65.3746 acres at 9331+ North Copeland Ridge, Madison. The property includes an 1865 school house that Hart and his mother, Donna Copeland Hart, have interest in restoring but they would first like to separate that property from the remainder of the farm.

The issue for the Board of Zoning Appeals came in the 75-foot by 60-foot tract of land the owners want to include with the school house. That would have place the structure on a .10-acre lot which is far less than the minimum 1.72-acre required in an agricultural district.

The Harts want to restore the old school in preserved condition with no plans for electric, water or a septic system. He said the structure would never be rented but could be used on weekends and as a campsite during hunting season.

"It's a method of managing that part of the property," said Harold Hart.

The board voted to deny the variance because it doesn't meet the conditions necessary to grant a variance due to lack of size or hardship since a variance cannot be granted on grounds of convenience or profit.

"We would like to see that happen, but we are dealing with the guidance that is in front of us," BZA Chairman David Ferguson said.

In other business, the board:

• Tabled a request by John Harrell, 4895 North State Road 7, Madison, in Madison Township, that a paper survey be submitted for a 84.7-foot by 73.9-foot lot that he wants to donate to Wirt Baptist Church. Harrell stated that he owns 120 acres north and west of the church and since the lot is so small he wants to avoid paying for a survey and measure the survey based on one already done for the church.

Board attorney Patrick Magrath noted the County Recorder needs an accurate record of the property, and it's important to have that established in the event of a change of title someday if the church is sold. "I hope the church is there forever," he said, adding the BZA has to think in terms that any property might be sold someday and the parcels must be compliant with Jefferson County requirements.

Mark Gardner, owner of Gardner Land Surveyors of Austin, represented Harrell at the meeting and noted that in circumstances involving such a small piece of land that a paper survey based on one like Wirt Baptist Church had done within the last five years should be permissible. Gardner said he serves as County Surveyor for Scott County, and that he is 100% certain that would be accepted by the Scott County BZA. Additionally, he noted that Wirt Baptist Church's land is already a combination of six separate parcels.

"I am not sure what it will benefit" to have a survey done, Gardner said.

The board tabled a decision in order to consult the County Recorder and Auditor to determine if a paper survey is sufficient.

• Jill Geyman-Harcrow and her husband, Robert Hartgrove, attended the meeting to express concern over the health of their family allegedly being impacted by chemicals used on commercial farms near their residence at 290 Goins Road.

Ferguson referred them to the City of Madison's Board of Zoning Appeals because the property falls within the two-mile buffer zone of city jurisdiction.

"People are getting sick as a result of the chemicals," Geyman-Harcrow said. "It's a major problem ... it took us two years to figure out what was hurting us. I love Madison, but what they're doing is lethal."

County Surveyor Mike Pittman said testing has been done by the Indiana Department of Environmental Management and "they didn't find anything."

"That is a lie. People can't go outside," Geyman-Harcrow said.

Pittman said he was only stating what was included in the IDEM report. However, he did acknowledge that there seems to be some sort of issue in the area.

The Zoo: Understanding Bulls, Bears, and the Deer

"Layin' it on the line"

"I have a million dollars in the stock market because if I lose a million dollars, I don't personally care."
– Suze Orman, quoted in the New York Times. Steve Dybwad

Many financial experts sell the path to success by using their all-knowing system. Suze Orman, Dave Ramsey, Jim Kramer, and most of the players in the financial expertise game, who write books or have talk shows or podcasts, have made fortunes giving people advice. Suze Orman's quote sets the tone for many of these experts; she makes money giving them advice, money from those searching for help.

Let me break down the concept of investing to a very basic level. Animals can help us understand how the market dictates movement, up or down.

The financial world can seem much like a zoo. Over the years, many terms now used derived from animals you may find at the zoo. The reason is simple; the animal terms are easy for people to relate to. For example, a bear hibernates, so if the market is in decline or negativity about investing is in circulation, it might be time not to invest or "hibernate." The bull represents aggression and growth; thus, a bull market signifies growth.

In years past, many financial terms have used animals as a synonym, such as a duck which meant floating along without any direction and doing nothing except quacking. Or a fish that meant to take a chance and buy any stock that looked reasonable regardless of any specific goal. Over time, we have three animal terms as surviving topics.

Bear: The word normally associated with a bear market is pessimism, in other words, a feeling that the market will go down or may stay down. Investors were fearing a down market are negative to investing, or like a bear, they go to sleep and do not invest. Many short-term investors often confuse a bear market with a correction, and a market correction is usually a shorter time period such as 1-3 months.

Bull: A bull market is just the opposite of a bear market. Bulls are aggressive and think the market will grow and increase. Just like a bull, the market is expected to be hard to control and is heading up. Bull markets are optimistic and confident; bulls thrust their horns up in the air signifying a belief in growth in the market.

Deer: Not often used by many investors but still meaningful. A deer market is a market doing nothing, simply staying neutral or flat. It can be a time of low activity with a specific definition much like the bull and bear market definitions: timidity. The market is not trending in any real direction, staying flat. As investors, most people will follow trends, up, down or neutral it all depends on your view of what the market will do.

The best approach to investing might be to have your goals evaluated and your investments redirected to an allocation that makes sense over the long run. There is an old saying about investing in the stock market: "the bulls make money, the bears make money, but the pigs get slaughtered."

Investing for specific goals is a solid approach, as you edge closer to your anticipated goal, many smart investors begin the move towards safety. Annuities can be a solid choice for you when it becomes your turn to run to safety.

For the most part, watching financial television shows or videocasts is a harmless habit. You may glean a few pieces of wisdom here and there or discover a viable retirement and income strategy. Consuming this type of media content can also help you keep money matters top of mind. Still, if you are within ten years of retirement, you should consider finding an expert in the "spend-down" part of finances.

Remember the Golden Rule many professional advisors and experts do not want you to know. The reason they do not want you to know this secret. If you did, you would no longer need theirs or anyone else's advice.

Everyone at some time in their life runs to safety. Maybe it is time for you to re-think your retirement vehicles?

He was preceded in death by his parents; his stepfather, Herald Banks; a brother, Gerald Banks; and an aunt.

The Honor Guards of the US Navy and the Major Samuel Woodfill American Legion Post 9 will conduct military graveside services at 2 p.m. on Monday, June 7, at the Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery in Madison with interment to follow there.
